

ABOUT THE AUTHORS :

The authors have more than 50 years of collective experience in Clinical Research. All of them are currently working in the Post Graduate Institute of Medical Education & Research (PGIMER), Chandigarh, India, which is a premier Institute of the nation. They have more than three hundred publications in national as well as international journals of repute.

Their advice is frequently sought by regulatory authorities, pharmaceutical companies, medical journals and doctors in matters relating to planning, conduct and publication of Clinical Research. They are governed by a passion to make Indian citizens fully versed with the nuances of Clinical Research so that a single patient is exploited.

However the authors also believe that the benefits of Clinical Research must reach the Indian patients but the patients must also be able to take their own decisions based on their newly acquired knowledge about risks and benefits of Clinical Research.

Many of the incidences referred to in the book have been taken from the personal experiences of the authors. A large part of the book is based on the actual questions asked by the patients.

ABOUT THE BOOK :

India is poised to become the largest hub of Clinical Research in the world. Many national & international pharmaceutical companies are already conducting or planning to initiate Clinical Research in India. This means that the next time you go to see your doctor you may be asked to participate in a Clinical Research project.

This book aims to provide you with the necessary information that you should possess before you agree to participate in Clinical Research. This book is also an attempt to allay your anxieties & answer most of your queries about participation in Clinical Research so that you become an active participant and not merely a passive observer at the mercy of your doctor.

Since everyone falls ill at one time or the other, this book is intended for all of you. If there are any doubts or if you require any clarifications, you can contact the authors at clinical_research_pgj@yahoo.com. You are also welcome to give your suggestions at the same address.
